The program started with an introduction to SWAYAM (Study Webs of Active-Learning for Young Aspiring Minds) and NPTEL (National Programme on Technology Enhanced Learning). The invited speaker, Dr. Neha Rani Kumar, Asst. Professor, Department of Chemistry, Dhemaji College (SWAYAM mentor of the college) explained the scope and structure of these online learning platforms, emphasizing the diverse range of courses offered by leading universities and institutions.

She outlined the advantages of MOOCs, such as the flexibility of learning, the opportunity to study at one's own speed, the availability of high-quality content from renowned educators, and the convenience of studying from home. Students were encouraged to explore courses beyond their syllabi to broaden their knowledge base.

Dr. Kumar guided students in selecting appropriate courses aligned with their interests, academic pursuits, and career goals. Information about course certification, course duration, and evaluation methods was provided, inspiring students to commit to their chosen courses. The program emphasized how MOOC certifications can add value to students' resumes and LinkedIn profiles, making them stand out to potential employers during job searches or higher education applications. Students were made aware of the potential career advancement opportunities that arise from showcasing additional skills and expertise.

The participants showed great excitement and a strong desire to investigate online learning opportunities to augment their educational journey. The Department of Mathematics remains committed to supporting students in their pursuit of continuous learning and career advancement, and will continue to organize such informative programs in the future.

The session ended with the vote of thanks proposed by Mr. Abhijit Konch, HoD, Department of Mathematics.
